MADISON VALUES GAIN OVER HALF MILLION

Tax Commissioner's Books Complete Show Tax Valuation of Over $26,000,000

Madison county's total valuation, as assessed for taxation this year and certified to the State Tax Commission by Tax Commissioner Ben R. Powell, is $26,312,170. This is a gain of $517,680 over the total assessment of last year, which was $25,794,490. Most of the gain was made on valuation of lands and lots.

Mr. Powell and his able assistant, Will Adams, have just completed their books and turned them over to the tax authorities who will scrutinize them and decide what, if anything, must be done in the matter of increases. It is hardly believed probable that any increase will be placed on Madison this year. Her farmers have had to bear several raises by the state board in the past few years and they now feel that conditions are such that no further increase can be justified.

A summary of the Tax Commissioner's books gives some interesting and valuable information concerning the wealth of Madison county both in dollars and in property. The figures show:

Leonard Defeats Mitchell

New York, Jan. 15.—In a spectacular bout, which was stopped by the referee in the sixth round at Madison Square Garden Friday night, Benny Leonard, world's lightweight champion, scored a technical knockout over Richie Mitchell, of Milwaukee, who, despite his defeat, proved to be a worthy challenger. The bout was the main attraction at a benefit given by the American Committee for Devastated France. Society women who suddenly have become patrons of the art of fist-cuffs stepped from opera box to ringside to watch boxers pummel one another for the war-stricken folk of France and their emolument.

COMPANY WILL TAKE OVER LOW GRADES

When Other Warehouses Open Monday if Farmers Reject Prices Offered for Them

Lexington, Ky., Jan. 15.—Not daunted by their failure to get all of their brother tobacco growers to back the proposal to hold all of the 1920 crop of burley tobacco, many growers here made arrangements to hold their bright leaf of all grades for a better market and higher prices by turning it over to the Burley Tobacco Marketing Company when sales are resumed on Lexington and other burley markets in Kentucky, Indiana, Ohio and Tennessee, it was said Friday.

Joe C. Van Meter, A. F. Shouse and Will Smith, all of Fayette county, members of the Burley Association, will represent the Marketing Company on the break Monday, one man following each set of buyers and accepting all leaf which farmers reject and turn it over to the company.

Several hundred thousand pounds of leaf has been pledged to the company direct and will not be placed on the market at all, but hauled to the G. F. Vaughan Tobacco Company redrier, South Broadway, and given the marketing company's charge.

The company will also have agents on other principal markets in the region. The leaf they accept will be handled by redriers in those towns and in markets where there are no redriers, leaf will be taken to the nearest plant. After the leaf has been formally given into the company's charge, the farmer is relieved of all responsibility, and the Burley Company will handle all other details, such as shipping, redrying, grading, storing and selling.

John W. Newman, who, as the president of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Association, is also lead of the Burley Tobacco Marketing Company, declared Friday that formation of the new growers' organization would not affect the Burley Association or Burley Marketing Company in any way. The Marketing Company will handle the tobacco of any grower who is not a member of the association on the payment of the membership fee, and the payment may be made in tobacco.

HAYS GETS THE BIG POSTOFFICE

Announcement Made at Marion, and Harding is Made Royal Arch Mason

Marion, Ohio, Jan. 15.—President-elect Warren G. Harding has made his first cabinet selection. That Will H. Hays, of Sullivan, Ind., would be postmaster general in Harding cabinet was announced authoritatively Friday night. Mr. Hays is chairman of the Republican national committee.

Mr. Harding, it is also said in authoritative circles, has decided on the entire personnel of his official family, but, it is added, he may make one or two changes before submitting the list.

Herbert C. Hoover, former federal food administrator, may be a member of the cabinet, but because of strong opposition that is said to have developed in the senate the probabilities are that he will not be chosen.

When Mr. Harding takes the oath of office next March 4 as the president his creed will be that expressed in Micah, sixth chapter and eighth verse. The verse follows:

"He hath shewed thee, O man, that is good, and what doth the Lord require of thee to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God."

The president-elect made the announcement relative to his proposed creed Friday night after he had been made a Royal Arch Mason, it became known today.

"During the last ten days I have been taken far back into the story of creation and I have found it to be adding to my sense of religious devotion," President-elect Harding said, according to the statement given out. "Prayer grips the heart and adds to one's confidence."

"I believe in prayer. I believe in prayer in one's closet, for there one faces God alone. Many times the outspoken prayer is only for people's ears. But I can understand how those of old, in their anxieties, problems, perturbations and perplexities, found courage and strength when they gave their hearts to the great, omnipotent God in prayer."

"How many things are in the Scriptures that we, in our worldliness, never discover?"

"After all, men are very much alike. God made us all in the same image and there is no difference in us except as we have developed, or when the weight of responsibility is shouldered on us then God makes men equal to that responsibility. It is the touch of responsibility that makes human beings awake."

"The government of this republic has been adrift and the inevitable result has followed. But I am not afraid, because I know through courtesy, confidence and close adherence to justice one will have at his call the best minds and intellects in this great republic, and with their truths, advice and direction, we cannot go wrong."

"I trust that in the four years that are to come you have conferred upon me and that I will come back and look you in the face and be able to say, 'I have kept the faith.'"

Prospective American tariff legislation is known to be a subject of vital British interest. Others include the world's oil supplies and treatment of British subjects in Mexico.

AUTOS INCREASE MILLION AND HALF

Registration Shows Kentucky in 26th Place Among States, With 112,680 Cars

Akron, O., Jan. 15.—Motor vehicle registrations for the past year obtained from the various states by the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Co., show there are now 9,274,920 passenger cars and trucks in use throughout the United States—one for every 11.8 persons. This is an increase of 1,670,904, or 21.9 per cent, over December 31, 1919, when there were 7,604,610 motor vehicles registered.

The gain during the past year was greater than that of any previous year and is considered exceptionally remarkable by officials of the automotive industry in view of the adverse business conditions throughout the country during the last part of 1920. The largest previous gain was 1,457,399 in 1919.

Every state in the union showed a gain during the year, Virginia leading with 51.1 per cent, and Tennessee last with 1.4 per cent. The majority of states showed increases ranging from 18 to 24 per cent. In a general way, the figures show agricultural states made better gains than industrial states.

The race between New York and Ohio for supremacy in the number of motor vehicles has again turned in New York's favor. The mid-year registrations last summer showed Ohio leading by 81,000 cars and it was thought it would maintain its lead for the entire year. Thousands of New York owners registered later, however, and the final figures showed New York with 692,174 and Ohio with 518,000.

Nevada is still badly mired in the "cellar" position, having only 10,474, as compared with 9,305 a year ago.

An analysis of the registrations by states show that eight have more automobiles within their individual confines than the entire continent of Europe. These states—New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania, California, Iowa, Texas, and Michigan—have a combined registration of 4,295,686.

Four new states entered the list of those having 100,000 or more cars. They were Virginia, Kentucky, Maryland, and Oregon. Of these, Virginia showed the greatest increase, having advanced from 94,100 to 142,154, a gain of 51.1 per cent.

Registrations by states for both 1919 and 1920, as compiled by the Goodrich Company, are given below:

CAPT. R. B. TERRILL'S FUNERAL FRIDAY

A Friend Pays Deserved Tribute to Gallant Old Soldier Who Wore the Gray

The remains of Captain R. B. Terrill, Confederate soldier, were buried from the home of his niece, Mrs. W. O. Mays, Friday afternoon, January 14, at 3 o'clock. Services were conducted by Dr. Homer W. Carpenter and Dr. R. L. Telford. Pallbearers were Messrs. T. S. Barnum, Waller Bennett, James B. Parkes, C. D. Pattie, N. B. Deatherage, Harvey Chenuault, T. J. Curtis, and M. F. Arbuckle. Interment was in the Richmond cemetery.

A Friend's Tribute

The death of Captain Robert Bruce Terrill at the Confederate Home on Wednesday evening and his burial in the Richmond cemetery Friday afternoon at three o'clock was announced in your paper of the 13th.

Thus another one of those gallant sons who wore the Gray has passed over the Great Divide to join with the hosts who have gone before.

Capt. Terrill was born in Madison county in 1838. His people were all Virginians, Wm. Terrill, his grandfather coming to Kentucky at an early date from that state. His mother was the daughter of Daniel Maupin, who like Mr. Terrill, also emigrated from Virginia.

Capt. Terrill was born in the Kingston neighborhood and he received his education in the schools of that community. When the Civil War came on he was living with his father on his farm. After the battle of Richmond, in August, 1862, Col. Chenuault immediately began recruiting of his regiment, the 11th Kentucky Cavalry. Capt. Terrill took an active part in this and was chosen by his comrades Captain of Company E. Thus he became identified with the command of General Morgan. He participated in all the battles and struggles which that army encountered. He was severely wounded at Mt. Sterling. On recovering from his wounds he returned to his command and continued with them until captured on the unfortunate Ohio raid. He was sent as a prisoner of war to Rock Island and where he remained until the end of the struggle in April, 1865.

On returning home he was elected clerk of the Madison Circuit Court in 1868, serving until 1874. He subsequently engaged in farming and stock raising. As a breeder of trotters he acquired a reputation. Late in life meeting with financial reverses and broken in health he sought refuge in the Confederate Home at Pewee Valley, which the state has so generously provided for its old soldiers. Many of his friends and relatives would gladly have had him, but he preferred the Home.

Captain Terrill had all the qualities necessary to a successful soldier. In addition to being a superb horseman, he had a splendid presence and undaunted courage. He inspired the men under him by his own daring and won their affection by his kindness. There was ever about Captain Terrill something which differentiated him from the vast numbers with whom one comes in contact. It cannot be described in words, but has to be felt or seen to be appreciated. He was a type of a class almost extinct. Would there were more like him.

He was the last of the commissioned officers of Chenuault's Regiment.

He was buried from the home of his niece, Mrs. W. O. Mays, and his body rests in our beautiful cemetery beside that of his wife, Amelia Clay Miller, who has long awaited on the other shore his coming.

Sir Robert; Hail and Farewell.

times to increase at the present rate there will be one car for every family five years from now.

The gains made by every state constitute the best proof that the automotive industry still continues in its era of unlimited expansion, says the Goodrich Company. A year ago, critics of the industry asserted that no future year would show an increase comparable with that of 1919—that the "saturation point" was almost reached and that replacement business would constitute a large part of manufacturer's efforts from then on. Yet a still greater gain is shown this year, and the end is not yet in sight.

What Edison Did during the War

YOU wondered—everybody wondered, and practically nobody knew how Edison "did his bit." At last the official announcement is out! Come in and get your copy of the bulletin: "What Did Edison Do During the War?"—or write, if you can't call.

It tells what Edison did while Chairman of the Naval Consulting Board—how he spent months at sea, experimenting and inventing devices for foiling the German submarines.

The bulletin also tells how Edison stood the gaff and kept the price of the New Edison down to bed-rock during the era of high costs and soaring prices. The New Edison has increased in price less than 15% since 1914—part of this increase is war tax. The bulletin also tells Mr. Edison's views on our Budget Plan which makes the New Edison easy to buy.

Humorous Homebrew Hearsay

Some of our thirsty citizens have embraced homebrewing as their favorite "indoor sport" since prohibition has become arbitrary. Just as was the case when automobiles first became the rage the amateur brewer loves to sport about various experiences (and experiments?) with his machine or whatever he calls his outfit. Ever on the job to reflect in a jovial vein, the popular tastes and happenings, the press paragraphers and jokesmiths have concocted some 100-proof laugh stuff. When comic comments on home-made booze are shown on the screen in "Topics of the Day" films the spirit of the mirth ripples through the audience in leading theatres. Here are some of the best humorous homebrew hearsay for your refreshment:

When you have made your first booze in the kitchen, pour a little in the sink. If it takes the enamel off it is ready to bottle.—Kansas City Star.

Little drops of water, little raisins, too, but Uncle Sam won't let us tell you what they'll do.—Washington Herald.

I feed my cows on hops; I give her raisins, too; oh, boy, down with the cop; she makes me my home brew!—Washington Times.
Father, he is busy fooling with home brew; with concoctions dizzzy he proceeds to stew: mother is for pitchin' his stuff in the brook; she can't get in the kitchen long enough to cook.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Humor From "Help Wanted—Male" Columns

Presumably all ad-lets in the help wanted—male columns of our newspapers are bona fide ones expressing need for men workers. When persons advertise for help they usually have a serious purpose prompting their actions. But there are some exceptions which prove the rule. Very often little mistakes in wording and punctuation make would-be serious ads quite comical. Remember how the audience at the movie theatre laughed and applauded the last time you saw one of these funny ads on the screen in "Topics of the Day" films? The Daily Register has found the following ad-laughs in "help wanted—male" columns and feels sure that they will tickle the risibilities of our readers:

Wanted—Man to look after garden, milk a cow with a good voice accustomed to sing in the choir.—Connecticut Country.

ONE YEAR FOR ONLY $2.50

IT IS KENTUCKY'S LIVEST COUNTRY DAILY

ALL SUBSCRIPTIONS ARE STRICTLY CASH IN ADVANCE. The paper is stopped when time for which it has been paid, expires. No deadheads are carried. Send in your money now and watch the way tobacco sells in the burley districts and how farm values are going.

Roxbury, Mass.—"I suffered continually with backache and was often despondent, had dizzy spells and at my monthly periods it was almost impossible to keep around at my work. Since my last baby came two years ago my back has been worse and no position I could get in would relieve it, and doctor's medicine did not help me. A friend recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I have found great relief since using it. My back is much better and I can sleep well. I keep house and have the care of five children so my work is very trying and I am very thankful I have found the Compound such a help. ### GAY OLD MEN

"SAM JAGWAY was trying to be funny, this morning," related the horse doctor. "He saw some boys turning handsprings, and undertook to show them how the trick used to be done in the halcyon days, and the doctor says he wrenched his back so he'll be in bed for several days."

"Disasters of that sort usually happen to the graybeard who tries to demonstrate that he isn't any older than he was forty years ago," commented the village patriarch. "I'm always being tempted to do some idiotic thing, and have to suppress such impulses with a mailed fist. It's all the outcome of vanity. A man hates to admit that he's a back number. He wants to assure the plain people that, notwithstanding his gray whiskers and string-baited legs, he's a four-horse team with a dog under the wagon, when it comes to athletic skill."

"I was in the livery barn the other evening, when young Fretzinger began explaining that he had been taking boxing lessons from one of the old masters. He had learned all the tricks of the game, and was just suffering agonies because there was nobody present who would stand up and exchange scientific swats with him."

"In my younger days, if I do say it myself, I was a star performer in the ordinary knock-down-and-drag-out form of combat, but I never was worth shucks at boxing. Nobody knows that better than I do. Why, then, did I inform Fretzinger that I would be glad to spar a few rounds with him? It surely was vanity and nothing else. I had an idea that, while he might have plenty of the fancy stuff on hand, I might land one of my old-time haymakers; in which case I felt sure the town would soon be ringing with the story of an old man's prowess."

"So I took off my long flannel-sleeved coat, and my vest, and stood up for battle. If anybody tells you, my friends, that Fretzinger doesn't know how to wield his hands, you may regard the story as a rookback. I never saw fists so numerous as on that occasion. I couldn't see anything else for a while, and they landed on me in many unexpected places, and I don't remember a time when I was so embarrassed."

"Fretzinger explained afterward that he merely tapped me gently because I was a venerable man, old enough to be his grandfather. In that case I never want to become involved in an argument with him when he is in earnest. I had a black eye for a week after this incident, and my nose has never satisfied me since. Every time I came downtown, I had to explain to a thousand people that I blackened my eye while spitting kindling, or that I dropped a sad-iron on it. There is nothing more humiliating than a black eye, and I made up my mind that I'd try to realize my advanced age thereafter, and behave myself like a grave and reverend man."

"But no sooner had my eye recovered than I was in trouble again. I saw some young men wrestling, and wanted to point out that they didn't know the rudiments of the game. I assured them that in my younger days I was a holy terror, and I didn't think that my hand had lost its cunning. It would afford me genuine happiness, I said, to show them how wrestling was done in the halcyon days of Muldoon and Whistler."

"So I removed my coat and vest and went into executive session with a husky young man who had no respect for gray hairs. I am not sure about what followed, but I think he must have thrown me over his head. Anyhow, I made a great dent in the earth with my person, and I was so sore for two weeks that I had to take myself around in a wheelbarrow. Of course, I am determined to make no more bad breaks of the kind, but I haven't much confidence in myself, and tomorrow you may see me climbing a tree half a mile high, to show some boys how to rob birds' nests."

"Snow Bird" Coal Dealer

Knoxville, Tenn., December 31, 1920.

Mr. W. F. Parks, Richmond, Ky.

Dear Mr. Parks: I find we are having so much complaint from the other dealers in Richmond who have had our coals regularly, and to whom we are really obliged to ship exclusively, that I do not believe we are going to be able to continue shipping you our regular brands of Clover Fork, Rex Red Ash and La Follette coals to Richmond. We are perfectly willing to ship you all you want to Paint Lick. We have certain exclusive arrangements there on these coals, and we have been violating them and I believe can not afford to longer do so.

If you are going to be regularly in the coal business at Richmond and have a yard, very possibly we can figure out some arrangement to give you a satisfactory quantity and quality of coal. Part of the complaint these other dealers make is that you are, in so many words a "snowbird," and partly that you are getting their brands of coal. I do not vouch for the correctness of the first statement, but I know the second one is very largely true.

I shall be glad to have you let us hear from you, and assure you that we appreciate the business you have given us in the past, but having these long-established arrangements with certain dealers in Richmond, you can very well understand how we are obligated to them for certain brands of coal, and we cannot afford to sell these brands to a new dealer.

With best wishes for the holidays and the New Year, I am,
Very truly yours, GUY DARST, Sales Mgr.

A Word From Mr. Parks In Answer to Letter

After trying to get me to join other dealers and sell at a higher price and I refused them, they took it up with the miners and tried to keep me from getting coal.

So, now I have arrangements made for all the coal I want.

W. F. PARKS,

The "Snowbird" cut-price coal dealer, 940 Estill Avenue, Richmond, Kentucky.

Consumer, if you want to keep prices down, trade with the man who put them down. If not, trade with the dealers who would keep them up.
